Coastal: To be or not to be USC

By Benjamin J. Gleason
and Brian McGuire

USC Coastal Carolina College may undergo yet another extreme transfiguration. Coastal may secede from the University of South Carolina system.

The logistics of a secession are being studied by a team of consultants that has been hired by the Coastal Educational Foundation (CHF) and the Horry County Higher Education Commission (HCHEH).

The cost of the study will cost the two groups $20,000, and the results should be available in 30 days.

Coastal's secession would be the extreme solution to this rather sudden consideration of Coastal's future. Other solutions, such as a negotiation of the contract of with USC, will also be considered.

Coastal is the least funded in the USC institution, while it is the fastest growing school in the USC system. This is obviously disheartening and unfortunate for Coastal — students, staff, and administration. This could be a main reason for secession. According to Dr. Bob Squatriglia, the budget would not go down if Coastal did not decide to be independent

There are mixed reactions throughout the college as students and faculty weigh the advantages and disadvantages of a possible secession.

Some of the problems plaguing students are that our library will suffer greatly without use of the interlibrary loan, or their diplomas will not have the same value as a USC diploma.

On the other hand, some feel that Coastal will have more freedom to do things without having to let the Columbia campus make the ultimate decisions and secession could be a way for the school to receive the necessary funds that it lacks.

Whatever the study concludes, students will be able to voice a more educated opinion.

As of this week there will be surveys circulating throughout the campus to correctly reflect the opinions of both students and faculty in hopes that it may influence the final decision of the campus. There will also be a public forum that will present both sides—advantages and disadvantages. The forum will be conducted by Omicron Delta Kappa.

Nursing Program Policies

By Barbara Ahrens

The Undergraduate Programs Faculty has recently undergone a change in the requirements for admission into the USC Medical University in Charleston. The standards for test scores has been risen for such tests as the Miller Analogies Test (MAT), the Scholastic Aptitude Test (SAT), and the American College Test (ACT). There, however, have been no changes in the minimum grade point average requirement. Coastal nursing students who meet these requirements can easily transfer to the Medical University in Charleston.

In calculating the grade point average, classes such as English composition/literature, psychology, microbiology, and statistics will be considered. If the class has been taken and the student has earned a below satisfactory grade and has retaken the class earning a satisfactory grade; both grades are calculated in determining the cumulative prerequisite GPA. The admissions requirement for prerequisite courses has not been changed.

Dia Tyner Crowned Ms. Coastal 1991

By Benjamin J. Gleason

On Wednesday, October 20, a large crowd gathered in Wheelwright Auditorium to witness the crowning of Ms. Coastal 1991. The opening act featured the fifteen contestants performing a dance routine to the song "One" from the Broadway smash "A Chorus Line."

From there the competition began as former Ms. Coastal, and this year's Mistress of Ceremonies, Louanne Moore Tippins introduced each contestant for the talent competition. This competition kept the crowd intrigued as the girls performed a plethora of dances, songs, and skits.

Between the talent and evening gown competitions, the crowd was treated to a lively jazz concert performed by the highly talented, local jazz trio, M&M Jaz. Mindy Spires, last years Ms. Coastal, also entertained the crowd by beautifully singing "I Can't Stay Away From You" by the Miami Sound Machine, and "Crazy" by the legendary Patsy Cline.

Each of the contestants were then escorted onto the stage in their evening gowns. From there the judges had to make the difficult decision of narrowing the field to five finalists. The finalists were each put on the spot as they had to answer questions that they had never heard before. Once answered, the judges had to make the final decision. Who would be the next Ms. Coastal Carolina College.

While the judges were making up their minds, Mindy Spires gave a heart-wrenching farewell speech that she dedicated to her recently deceased grandfather.

After Ms. Spires said farewell, Mrs. Tippins called out the names of the talent contest winner, Dia Tyner, and the winner of Ms. Congeniality, Melissa Richardson.

The final moment had arrived and the winners were called. Ms. Kristie Michelle Brown, a sophomore with an undeclared major, sponsored by the University Concert Choir, was chosen second runner-up.

Ms. Melissa Jane Richardson, a junior majoring in secondary education, was chosen to be first runner-up.

The new Ms. Coastal 1991 is the sophomore marketing major Ms. Dia Tyner. She was crowned by Dr. Ron G. Eaglin, Chancellor.

The event was sponsored by Campus Union and Afro-American Society. Congratulations on a job well done, and congratulations to all of the contestants.

Dissection Hotline Available

Thousands of students will face ridicule and failing grades this school year because they have a moral objection to dissecting animals in biology and anatomy classes.

But now there is help for such students — a national, toll-free Dissection Hotline, 1-800-922-FROG, set up by concerned mother Pat Graham and the national Animal Legal Defense Fund (ALDF).

The hotline provides callers with information on alternatives to dissection, guidelines on negotiating with professors and college officials and help with overcoming obstacles students may face as they exercise their rights. Also available is a free handbook that outlines an eight-step plan for refusing to dissect. And when necessary, ALDF can refer students to local attorneys for assistance.

Steve Nodine, a junior majoring in biological conservation of University of Wisconsin in Milwaukee, called the hotline last year when he learned that dissection would be a requirement for his introductory biology class. Having long been concerned about the welfare of animals, it was natural for Nodine to have strong ethical objections to dissecting a fetal pig, a crayfish and a starfish.

"The materials sent to me by the people at the Dissection Hotline gave me helpful information on how to approach the head of the department about my problem," says Nodine. "I learned how to convey my feelings about animals so that they would be respected."

His professors did excuse Nodine from dissecting, but told him that to pass the course, he would have to observe animals being dissected. Nodine did not go through with the observation exercise and took an "incomplete" for the course. He continues to negotiate for an alternative project to finish the class.

Problems such as the one that plagues Nodine are precisely why Pat Graham wanted to start the hotline. She came up with the idea after seeing what her own daughter Jennifer went through in 1987 when she refused to dissect a frog in her high school biology class. Jennifer's case, which is still being argued in the California courts, made national headlines and led to the nation's first state law protecting a student's right not to dissect.

"I knew there had to be many other high school and college students who shared Jeni's feelings about animals, but who weren't getting the same attention and support," says Graham. In its first year, she points out, the hotline received more than 15,000 calls from students, parents and educators around the country.

According to Joyce Tischler, executive director of ALDF, there has been no definitive ruling on the rights of college students to refuse to dissect. Lawyers at the Animal Legal Defense Fund plan to argue test cases based on civil rights laws and on the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution.

"Biology, physiology and anatomy should be life sciences — not death sciences," says Tischler. "But dissection is an institutionalized form of animal exploitation that teaches students that animal life is cheap and expendable. We believe all students have the right to study animal life without desecrating it, and we are trying to arm students with information that will help them exercise that right."

Class President Election Results

Senior Class: Thi Nguyen Woolridge won in spite of attempts by Mickey Mouse to win by popularity alone.

Editorial

As much as it pains me to say it, there is more scandal and corruption amid the Coastal delegation of South Carolina Student Legislature (SCSL). If you remember back to late September, former SGA President Regina Bechtler-Simpson decided to pay back Rachelle Drakeford for all of the work she had done for Gina's presidential campaign by appointing her to the chairship of SCSL. Although, in order to do that she had to remove me from the position. When she brought the idea to the SGA body she was confronted with much opposition. The body could not understand why I should be removed; when it came to a vote to accept the nomination of Rachelle, the body defeated it by a vote of 3 for, 27 against. Gina, being the power monger that she is and despite the negation of her appointment, was determined to have Rachelle as chairperson at any cost. To make a long story short, the matter went to committee and Gina got her way -- Rachelle was ratified as chair.

I was completely dumbfounded by Gina's blatant disregard for the opinion of the SGA body, but being a constitution-abiding person, I decided to come to terms with the decision and proceed to concentrate on being a hard-working delegate of SCSL. I thought to myself, maybe Rachelle won't be such a bad chairperson -- after all, this will be her third trip to the conference. Boy, was I ever wrong!

The group worked diligently to prepare for the October interim meeting in Columbia -- a meeting the utterly misinformed, mistaken chairperson thought the entire delegation must attend. The person who had taken my place, and was supposed to have been more competent than I, ended up taking the entire delegation to a meeting that only she and Gina were required to attend. (By the way, Gina didn't even go.) Rachelle budgeted $300 for hotel and meal provisions for ten people for a two hour meeting in Columbia. She, as well as the rest of the delegation, knew that we were not fully funded for the events to come this year, but she did not hesitate to abuse SGA monies.

When the group returned to Coastal, they were outwardly condemning Rachelle's actions in the capitol city, and she no doubt felt the heat. Within a week, Rachelle, feeling like the incompetent leader that she really is, dropped the committee like a hot potato and ran with her tail between her legs. The day after Rachelle resigned, Gina was in the SGA office letting Dave Crumlich know that she was also through with the committee. Gina should be commended for her dedication to Coastal and SCSL -- HA! She was to play an integral role in SCSL as being the chair of a state-wide Miscellaneous Committee. By resigning her position, she not only let down the whole organization, but she gave Coastal a big black eye.

Thanks to Rachelle and Gina, Coastal's delegation of SCSL will be viewed in a different light. They have managed to turn an important and valuable learning tool for state government into a laughingstock. I would like to ask a favor of the students, faculty, and administration: despite the recent controversy, please continue to support SCSL. Now that the bad elements are gone we can go to the Fall Session, November 8-11, with confidence despite our recent setbacks.

I would also like to send a personal thank you to the Student Government Association for supporting me from the beginning and not supporting power mongers like Gina and Rachelle.

Editor's Note: The preceding editorial was written by Benjamin John Gleason. Gleason is an experienced SCSL committee member and delegate. He is also an esteemed writer and typist for The Chanticleer.

SGA Briefs

By Susanne Viscarra

MONDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1990 ANNOUNCEMENTS

SCNB and Coastal are negotiating the costs of installing automatic teller machine in the new bookstore.

TREASURER'S REPORT

The current SGA account balance is $6,197.62.

Special Allocations recently distributed $200.00 to Student Activities for the Leadership Workshop, $700.00 to the SUW, and $550.00 to SCSL.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Dr. Bob Squatriglia gave our four officers their oaths of office upon receipt of their new positions: David Crumlich as president, Debbie Rhan as vice president, Mark Sikes as treasurer, and Trish Grant as secretary.

Dargan Construction, the firm handling the Wall building, may install an intramural field by the dorms. Already approved by the SGA body in the spring, $4,000.00 may be adequate for the project.

David Crumlich and Mark Sikes met with Dr. Art Smith at the Panel of Presidents meeting. They discussed such diverse system issues as ecological awareness, financial support from the Columbia campus, grading policies, and fall breaks. David would like student input on issues to be addressed in the future.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

The dates for class presidents elections were chosen to be October 23 and 24.

The FIPSE Committee recently composed the seventh draft of the alcohol policy. Donna Mitchell requested that students read through it and submit concerns and inquiries to the SGA office by October 26.

In the first meeting of the Campus Judicial Board, Debbie Briggs found the faculty members to not take their positions seriously.

The Long-Range Planning Committee is part of a study on our relationship within the USC system. This study will determine whether we should keep our current contract with Columbia, update our contract or become independent.

OLD BUSINESS

Sigma Xi Chi redrafted and resubmitted their constitution.

RSA's constitutional changes were tabled until the next meeting, because they have not yet been formally withdrawn.

The Spirit Club received unanimous recognition from the body.

The constitution of the Management and Organizational Club (M+O) was tabled for approval until the next meeting, because their representative was not present.

Theta Sigma's constitutional changes were tabled until the next meeting, because their constitution has not been formally redrafted and submitted.

The appointment of Allison

Parker to the Elections Committee was ratified by the body.

Debbie Rhan was approved as a new member of the Campus Judicial Board.

NEW BUSINESS

President Crumlich swore in the body as his first official act in office.

Dr. Squatriglia would like the students to consider adopting the Carolinian Creed.

Brendan Frost received a trophy from Ben Gleason, last year's chair of SCSL, for being the best Coastal delegate of the 1989-1990 session.

Monday, October 22 ANNOUNCEMENTS

Clubs desiring to maintain their recognition by SGA need to complete an Intent to Continue Form for Student Activities by Wednesday, October 24.

Mark Sikes will be meeting with Dr. Squatriglia and a representative from SCNB about the teller machine on Tuesday, October 23. Mark will report on the outcome of this meeting next week.

The Athenium would like club representatives to stop by the office to identify club members in pictures.

The Leadership Workshop will be held on November 1 and 8, from 2:15 to 5:30 p.m. Interested persons should notify Student Activities.

Censorship: American Right-Wing Style

By David M. Schulz

Would any of you like to live in a country where you weren't allowed to listen to the kind of music you like? Or read the kinds of books you like to read? Or even view the kind of artwork you like to hang on your walls? Would any of you object to certain powerful political and religious figures deciding for us what is "safe" for the general public? Well, if you don't care about any of these things, you can stop reading this now and go on home and plug yourself into the tube, eat a couple of Valiums, and continue to believe everything that Dan Rather tells you. Never mind that certain right-wing, power-hungry leeches are currently engaged in a blitz against the inalienable human right to be able to say whatever we choose. Never mind that the people who would like to see this nation become "Christianized" and anaesthetized are sponsored by the same corporations who fill your head with commercials that tell you it's time for another beer, and to just close your mind, lest these and other worries trouble you.

But on the other hand, if you're the kind of person who can see behind the lies, and would like to be able to express your thoughts without fear of being prosecuted, then listen up! What follows are the facts surrounding charges that were made against Jello Biafra, lead singer of the now-defunct, political, punk-rock band Dead Kennedys, and the trial that followed.

On the morning of April 15, 1986, Mr. Biafra awoke in the bedroom loft of his rented San Francisco flat to find that nine policemen—six from San Francisco and three from Los Angeles—were ransacking his home. They had let themselves in by breaking a window by the front door; they claimed they knocked first. Biafra demanded to know why they were there and was told that they were looking for evidence of "harmful matter." After two and a half hours of searching, interrogating, and even inspecting his private mail, they finally found the booty: three copies of the Dead Kennedys' fourth record, Frankenchrist, and the posters that accompanied them.

The posters in question display the artwork of Swiss surrealist H.R. Giger, known for the Oscar he received for his work in the film Alien. The work depicts the patterned dehumanization of ten erect phalli entering ten vaginas, representing the repetitious monotony of a society "screwing" itself, a theme befitting of any Dead Kennedys record.

Later, they also searched the offices of Alternative Tentacles records, Biafra's independent label, and found the 4"x6" chrome slide used to reproduce the Giger painting (with permission, of course); ironically, the police forgot to take it with them.

A month and a half later, on June 2, the Los Angeles City Attorney's Office charged Biafra, and four others who were involved in the distribution and pressing of the record (and not the poster itself), with "Distribution of Harmful Matter to Minors." (Strangely, they waited to bring the charges forward until the day before election day, just when the LA District Attorney was running for re-election.) The charges stemmed from an incident when a teenage girl bought the record for her younger brother, and her mother, upon seeing the poster, sent a letter to the City Attorney's office complaining that Dead Kennedys were packaging "pornographic material" with their records. I have my own copy of the poster hanging in my bedroom, and in no way does it "turn me on" or make me want to masturbate while viewing it.

Enter the PMRC:

The Parents Music Resource Center, founded by four prominent Washington housewives, is an organization dedicated to "cleaning up rock music." Two of the more influential members are Susan Baker, wife of James A. Baker III (who was Reagan's Chief of Staff and later the Secretary of Treasury), and Tipper Gore, wife of 1988 Democratic presidential candidate Albert Gore Jr. The PMRC's "researcher" and "expert on rock music" is the Rev. Jeff Ling, a fundamentalist from Manassas, Virginia, who is coincidentally never identified as a reverend in any of the PMRC's literature. The group was initially funded by the Love Foundation (founded by Mike Love of the Beach Boys) and is currently funded by the Coors beer corporation (so please don't support either of these organizations who promote censorship!). I could find the whole matter hysterical if the PMRC didn't have such powerful ties to right-wing churches and politicians and access to such ample funds.

Long before charges were brought up against Dead Kennedys, the PMRC singled them out as "offensive" because of their highly

Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

Please pardon my lack of formality, but give me a break! Ms. Drakeford's article has to be the worst example of propaganda I have ever experienced in my twenty years on the planet Earth. I quote Ms. Drakeford in saying, "She was one of the best SGA Presidents since I have been at Coastal." Come on, Rachelle, look at the facts. Regina Simpson had so many constitutional violations you need a calculator to add them all, she ignored and misrepresented the students by spending unapproved money, and created a complete scandal over SCSL. She was disliked but it was certainly not because she was efficient or dedicated. And to even utter the word competent in the same breath as Regina and president is a mockery to all of SGA. As for SGA being "fired up," I think you should look at the students and reconsider your choice of words. There is a big difference between "fired up" and "pissed off". Regina made enemies out of just about every senator in our weekly meetings, not to mention a few of her own officers. As for making everyone aware of our constitution, I find that a little hard to believe; she didn't even seem to know it herself, since she violated a great portion of its by-laws. I have one last point to bring to your attention. Our beloved former president ran on the grounds of her great knowledge of Robert's Rules of Order, but she managed to screw that up too. The question I ask you, Ms. Drakeford, is what did she do right?

In closing, I ask Ms. Drakeford one small favor—take off the rose-colored glasses and join the rest of us in reality.

Sincerely,

Dargan Baldwin

Dear Editor,

The issues which affect the voters in America are too complicated for the majority of the voters to be democratically involved.

How can we sell weapons, bury radioactive waste, spray herbicides, mechanize farms, spew hazardous waste into rivers, clean almost everything with water, attempt to isolate causes of cancer, vote for people we have never met, be taxed for projects we don't understand, be analyzed by people who have never had to live where we are living, be alienated by twenty-five religions for every one religion we associate with, be expected to believe we know how Nature is supposed to work AND finally, have any idea how all this is going to turn out? What experts know how all this is going to turn out?

There are limits to how much anyone can say they know for sure. If the "experts" do not really know that all these complicated projects, with both their benefits and potentially hazardous by-products, can blend together without causing "unacceptable risk," we all ought to be making our decisions based on a responsible understanding of our situation. Can we say this now? No. We must admit that issues are in many ways decided undemocratically by the "experts," and these decisions are often lost amid a chaotic mass of information provided by television, newspapers, radio—and just about everything else.

One consequence of all this which we can be sure of is that it represents an abuse of human rights all around—ironically, even of the "experts" own rights—as economic, ecological, and social systems become unstable and create understandable anxiety. Is anyone responsible for what is going on anymore?

More education is not the answer. We already unknowingly acquiesce to many significant decisions which affect us because we are overwhelmed by the chaotic mass of information we are now expected to swallow. We need simpler economic and ecological systems. We need to be closer to where our basic necessities of food, clothing, and shelter are produced. We cannot hope to re-establish a healthy environment of honesty and integrity—and therefore stability—without simplifying our economic and ecological systems enough so that we are all, once again, democratically involved.

However, it must be admitted that the possibility of voters in America reaching such an agreement together, without a split, seems extremely unlikely... for even a simpler life and a secret wish that the many advertised wonders of science can be had for a price which is not too high to pay. In other words, it does seem that these desires are mutually exclusive; that is, they are impossible for people to resolve in their own lives, in the world as we know it.

Based on this observation, I have no wonder why we do not suggest a "branching" of American Culture. Why do we not plan as if that part of us which yearns for a simpler life has as "legitimate" a desire as that part of us which is curious to discover all their is to discover? The way I see it, both wishes represent real desires—no matter what is "legitimate" of "verifiable"—and both wishes have proven benefits behind them and unknown risks ahead... which is about the best that can be said about any prospects on Earth. If we plan for a "branching" of American Culture, then both instincts can be satisfied—and recognized from the beginning as mutually supportive—and both environments will be available... in case people want to switch affiliation from time to time.

When the time comes to decide between "I know..." or "I don't know for sure..." honesty is the best policy.

"When in doubt, tell the truth."

—Mark Twain

John Maxwell

Joe Bob Goes to the Drive-In

By Joe Bob Briggs

The latest thing that Jane "Whoops! I'm Sorry!" Fonda forgot to tell us is that all her exercise videos of the eighties had the wrong advice on em. She used to tell people to "do it till your stomach burns," and now the doctors say people have been burning up their stomachs.

So Jane's into "low impact" stuff now. Did you see her last week on "The Larry King Show" holding hands with Ted Turner and talking about her new low-impact, take-it-easy, don't-burn-yourself-up video? I almost expected her to say, "And one more thing — North Vietnam is full of Commie slimedogs! We should nuke the place!"

But I could have told Jane this eight years ago, when they first started selling the Abdomenizer on TV. What do people want in an exercise plan?"

Something that doesn't feel like exercise.

How much do people wanna hurt when they're exercising?

They don't wanna hurt when they're exercising?

And how much time a day do people wanna spend riding bikes and lifting weights and rearranging their hemoglobin on the joggin track?

Zero!

That's why, long before the "Body By Jake" Workout, long before the Raquel Welch "Get a Load of These Thighs" Workout, and long before the Richard Simmons "Here's Another Neal Sedaka Record" Workout, and long before the Jane Fonda "You Won't Even Sweat" workout, there was the Joe Bob Briggs "Five-Second Workout."

The Five-Second Workout is the ultimate exercise video for the nineties. Doctors now know that what it takes to be physically fit for the rest of your life is to work out three times a week, for 20 minutes each time. But who has that kind of discipline and self-control?

That's where my video comes in. Instead of spending 20 minutes of your valuable time on a rowing machine, you spend five seconds exercising, but you do it 720 times a week!

The video includes 720 complete five-second workouts, and here's the beauty of this deal: Most of em are things you already do anyway!

Take Workout No. 364: Yanking the lever on the cigarette machine. If you pull it real slow, you'll gain five seconds of aerobic bicep benefit every time you do it.

Or how about Workout No. 278: Getting up to get the remote control off the top of the TV. All you have to do is run to the remote instead of walking. Two and a half seconds to get to the TV, two and a half to return, and if you lunge for the remote when you get there, you'll be working major muscle groups in the thighs and shoulders.

One of my favorites is Workout No. 448: Yelling at your girlfriend. The facial and vocal muscles are frequently overlooked when we plan an exercise regimen. Not with the Joe Bob Briggs Five-Second Workout! See how loud you're able to scream the following words, and be sure to time yourself: "They don't make panty-hose that big, Rhinoceros Woman!"

Send me forty bucks today, and I'll send you the Five-Second Workout. Within six weeks, I guarantee you'll be attractive to most people living in Pine Bluff, Arkansas, or your money back.

Speaking of cellulite, there are only about 100 people in the universe who can show their nekkid body in public — and all of them have been in an Andy Sidaris movie. Andy, the sports director who has made an entire career of movies about Playboy Playmates who are actually federal undercover agents, has done it again. "Guns," featuring six Playmates, including three-time "Breast Actress" winner Dona Spier, flops onto the screen this week with Erik Estrada (!) as the evil South American drug smuggler who is trying to lure Dona to Las Vegas, lure her out of her sequined plunging-neckline party dress, and execute her in a casino showroom. Fortunately, there are all kinds of American agents helping protect Dona, including Cynthia Brimhall, lead singer in Playboy's Girls of Rock and Roll, nude oil-wrestlers Donna Spangler and Kym Malin, and Liv Lindeland, who did a centerfold eighteen years ago but still has intact torpedoes.

As usual, we've got airplanes blowing up, rocket launchers, assault rifles, hot tubs, girls that can use machine guns while dressed in Frederick's of Hollywood lingerie, and, of course, no plot to get in the way of the story. Andy has done it again, and this time he's added a new dramatic element: transvestite hitmen.

Eleven breasts. Fourteen dead bodies. Three motor vehicle chases, with crash and burn. Exploding bamboo. Exploding Ultralite. Exploding character actor. Oil wrestling. Shower scene. Hot-tub murder. Gratuitous ninjas. Kung Fu. Sawed-off shotgun Fu. Drive-In Academy Award nominations for Erik Estrada, for having three story hair and doing his first sex scene — almost; Lisa London, as a Hawaiian restaurant owner and, of course, undercover federal agent, for saying "I do it all — everything from busting heads to baking bread"; Chu Chu Malave and Richard Cansino, as cross-dressing gunmen; Cynthia Brimhall, for singing two lounge

songs while dressed in a lace corset; Devin Devasquez, as Erik Estrada's girlfriend in a leopard-skin leotard, for saying "Let me kill for you"; Roberta Vasquez, for showing off her two enormous talents by aardvarking in the desert on a motorcycle seat at sunset; Phyllis Davis, for watching her daughter stand three feet from a guy and fire four nuclear rockets through his chest, for saying "How did you learn to shoot like that?"; Dona Spier, for running around in a halter top carrying a rocket launcher, and for saying "That's it for me! I'm hitting the shower!"

Four stars. Joe Bob says check it out.

Welcome to my World

By George M. Singleton

Have you ever been at home watching the television when a program comes on that shows how Man is destroying the rain forests? Do you sit there and say, "Why do people do these things?" or do you say, "Thank God I am not the cause of such senseless killing?"

Did you know that maybe you are a partial cause of this destruction? Since this could be a long debate, why don't you hop into your Volkswagen and head to "Mickey Dee's" and grab a bite to eat so we can finish this discussion, or, as some would say, "We could kill two trees with one stone."

One of the primary incentives for the total annihilation of our world's rain forests is for the cultivation and production of beef cattle.

"Beef cattle?" you say. "That's right, because you want to have that burger your own way, land is cleared and grass is planted on land that was once lush forest."

The reason for the thick vegetation in these forests is a complex and tightly held cycle within itself. The decay from the life cycle of the plants living there redeposit nutrients for future growth of plants and other living organisms that dwell in the forest. When you take away the forest, even though the ground is rich with nutrients, you take away what holds it all together.

"Pass the ketchup please."
"Are you even listening?"
"Why of course, but my burger needs more ketchup."

"Did you know that raindrops hit the ground at 45 mph?"

"No, and why should I care? - Would you like my pickle?"

Raindrops are one of the most devastating forms of soil erosion on Earth. Thick vegetation cuts down the velocity of the drops as they hit the ground and also allows for more absorption causing less erosion. Without this thick ground cover, erosion begins its deadly cycle.

"Well, I see you almost finished your burger, . . . No thanks, my fish sandwich was plenty for me. Now let's get back to your role in this senseless destruction of the forests."

The major fast-food companies go to South America to purchase the beef that is raised on newly-cleared land, once lush rain forests, and ship it back to the United States for our consumption at zillions of their fast-food restaurants. Nothing wrong with that.

"Sounds like the American way."

"WRONG." . . . when the cattle graze this land for a couple of years, coupled with our friend erosion, the land cannot support anything else, causing it to turn barren and desolate as one might find in the desert. It will not even support additional cattle.

"So, what do they do then?"
"You guessed it! They cut down more rain forests to raise more cattle at a rate that some say has reached 5,000 acres per day. — Guess it's time to head home."

"Do you like my new Volkswagen?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"Did you know that many multi-national corporations, such as Volkswagen have entered the beef production industry since it is so highly profitable, hoping to increase their own bottom line, forsaking everything to make one more dollar."

They might say we can have it our way, but for our children, there might not be a place for them to have it at all. As you enter through you next Golden Arch, wearing clothes made in America, demand at the top of your voice to see the sign that says, "GROWN IN THE USA." and if they just look at you with a blank stare, maybe the time has come for a bean burrito.

Learning in Independent Study Degree Program

Submitted by Indiana University

As Stanley M. Davis says in his book Future Perfect, "Matter is not all that matters!"

In today's world, more and more people are seeking to further their educations. However, fewer and fewer of them can afford the time and expense of traditional education.

Did you know that you can obtain a college degree at your own pace without ever stepping into a classroom? There are several non-traditional independent study programs in the nation; some have been around since the beginning of the century. However, there are only a few fully accredited colleges and universities that offer external degree programs that can be completed solely through independent study courses. They can be found in Thorson's Complete Guide to Accredited Off-Campus College Degree Programs. Thorson's guide also mentions some benefits of independent study degree programs: "There are many advantages in study by correspondence—flexibility being one of the primary ones... Schools report that in many instances the personal growth and confidence acquired by an adult studying in an independent format often gives him or her a deeper level of understanding and appreciation far beyond that of the traditional college-age student."

Joann MacDougall Paris, a student enrolled in the Indiana

University Division of Extended Studies Degree Program, says, "I found the General Studies Degree Program an avenue to complete what I had put on hold."

The Division of Extended Studies extends Indiana University to a heterogeneous audience who otherwise might find the services of the university either inaccessible or careless with their special needs, says Lawrence Keller, Director of Extended Studies at Indiana University.

In traditional education programs, time is a constraint, exams and courses have a specific time frame, and individuals are seen as a group. Time, however, is a resource in the non-traditional educational system; students can spend as much or as little as they need for their studies and can decide when they are ready for exams.

External degree programs also recognize credit from other institutions, credit by examination, and credit for college-level learning gained through life experiences (self-acquired competencies).

Non-traditional education means that a degree can be obtained without paying moving and living expenses and at lower tuition fees. More importantly, you can continue your current lifestyle. You do not have to quit your job, leave your home and friends or disregard family duties.

Humanity already has started a new era, "The Information Age," in which the value of things is not in their physical properties, as happened in the industrial era, but in the information they provide. This fact is clearly seen in the area of computers; the price of software is usually 80 percent of the cost. Think, too, about something more familiar. Remember when you bought a TV, and that was it. Now you pay cable companies to provide more wide-ranging information. You could use an antenna, but you would receive only three or four channels, if you were lucky. The amount that many people now pay for two years of basic cable TV service is roughly equivalent to what they pay for a new TV.

The more the importance of information grows, the greater the need for education becomes. Trends show that the majority of new jobs in the next ten years will require education beyond high school, and yet 25 to 30 percent of all high school students drop out before graduating. About half of high school graduates attend college, but only half of these students complete degree programs.

Non-traditional education programs profit from technical improvements; they permit an effective and timely information flow. Now, anyone can learn at any place at any time.

Archarios announced that approximately 150 submissions were received. Susanne Viscarra would like to thank everyone who submitted, including students, faculty, and staff. The first issue comes out on November 30.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Mark Sikes announced that we currently have $6,191.23 in our account.

Mark needs the heads of the following groups to stop by the SGA office: Sigma Phi Epsilon, Theta Sigma, Upstage, FCA, Campus Crusade for Christ, The Chanticleer, and the Biology Club.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Dargan Construction should at least have the new intramural field prepped by the end of November.

Anyone wishing to be included on an SGA agenda must request such by 5:00 p.m. on the preceding Tuesday. This deadline may be moved ahead in the future.

Members of the Horry County Higher Education Commission will be here all week as part of the project studying our relationship within the USC system. With the Coastal Educational Foundation, Inc., an ad hoc committee was formed in 1989 to study this relationship. Our contract was established in 1975, when we were still only a two-year college, and has not been revised since then. Students will be informally surveyed across campus. Dr. Betsy Puskar, one of our advisers, is also drafting a survey for students which will be conducted on Monday, October 29.

COMMITTEE REPORTS
Debbie Rhan has created a bulletin board for committees in the SGA office. All committee members are urged to check the board regularly.

Today the Long-Range Planning Committee will be meeting with a member of the trio surveying our relationship within the system.

The Academic Affairs Committee is reviewing possible grading policies. One policy that is under consideration is to not include an F in one's GPA if one retakes the course and receives a passing grade. Another is to award a WP for those who drop a course after the last drop date but are in good standing; this policy would be used for those who needed to drop due to extenuating circumstances. Thirdly, those students desiring to study abroad will be considered to receive credit through individual petition. Theater 140 is also being considered as an integral part of every major's core.

SCSL attended the Big Interim meeting in Columbia on October 22 and received their bill books. We are now considered a large school because of Coastal's increased enrollment, thus we are now in the league with such campuses as USC Columbia, Clemson, and the College of Charleston and are allowed to be represented by two more delegates.

The Constitution Revision Committee held their first meeting on October 21. They request student input.

OLD BUSINESS

Dr. Squatriglia distributed copies of the Carolinian Creed to be considered for adoption at the next meeting.

The M+O Club's constitution was ratified unanimously by the body.

Sigma Xi Chi's constitution did not receive approval from the body. They will have to redraft and resubmit it at the next meeting.

Correction: The submission entitled "A Tribute to the Former President" appeared in the October 16 issue of The Chanticleer. The author's name is Rachelle Drakeford. The first line of the piece should have read, "Dear Editor,". The last line of the submission should have read, "zombies are awake."

Joyner Gives Keynote Address

Charles Joyner, our Burroughs Distinguished Professor of Southern History and Culture, gave the keynote address at the sixteenth annual Porter L. Fortune Symposium in Southern History at the University of Mississippi on October 3.

Joyner was introduced by Gerald L. Turner, chancellor of the University of Mississippi. The title of Joyner's address was "One Southern Culture: Culture Interaction in the Old South."

The symposium, addressing the theme of cultural interaction in the South before the Civil War, featured scholars from Israel and Canada as well as from leading universities in the United States.

According to the Daily Mississippian, Joyner "thinks broadly and has an interest in language. He deals with complex ideas in beautiful, touching ways."

Sports

Soccer Team, ranked 8th Begins Quest for Title

by Wayne White, Sports Editor

Coastal Carolina's soccer team will begin defense of its Big South title this Wednesday at 7:00 p.m. against the Eagles of Winthrop.

The Chanticleers finished second in the regular season conference race with a 4-2 Big South record while Winthrop finished seventh at 1-5.

Coastal's domination has not been confined to Big South opponents. The Chant's record of 13-3-2 is one of the best in the southern region. The record is even more impressive when looking at the teams that Coastal has defeated.

Such national powers as Maryland, George Washington, UNC-Greensboro, and the College of Boca Raton have felt the wrath of Coach Paul Banta's troops. Maryland was ranked 15 in the nation when the Chants traveled to College Park, Maryland and dumped the Terps 2-1. George Washington, also nationally ranked, had to fight for a scoreless tie as the visiting Chants dominated the match. NCAA Division II power UNC-Greensboro ranked second in the nation, suffered a 5-2 thrashing at the hands, or feet, of the Chants. Coastal then traveled to Boca Raton and defeated the number one NAIA team in the nation 4-1.

One would look at these numbers and conclude that Coastal is one of the highest ranked teams in the south, right? Wrong!

The Chants are ranked only eighth in a region that is considered the toughest in the nation. It is easy to see that this is a major mistake when the team ranked just ahead of the Chants, Wake Forest, has an overall record of 5-7-1.

To give the rankers the benefit of the doubt, let's assume that the low ranking is due to the Chant's three losses. While you assume this is the reason, we will look at the losses.

Loss number one was to Augusta College is a game full of poor officiating. The Chants fought off numerous yellow and red cards for 90 minutes, but fell 3-1 in overtime.

Coastal's second loss came against the south's number one school and top-five nationally ranked Clemson Tigers. The Chant's problems started on the way to Clemson, when the school van broke down, leaving the players stranded for four hours. After finally arriving in Clemson, the Chants were forced quickly into action. The first half was a nightmare for the Chants because they were not as loose as usual. The second half was a different story as Coastal dominated play even though they were a man down.

The final loss came against Campbell as Coastal dominated play from start to finish. Even though Coastal took three shots to every one for the Camels, it was one of the few Campbell shots that was lucky enough to find the back of the net.

Now, let us all quit assuming things. This means the southern rankings committee also. Do not assume that the Chants are not one of the best and look at the facts.

Here it is. The 1990-1991 USC-Coastal Carolina College Tentative Men's Basketball Schedule for November and December:

Saturday, November 24	North Coast Tournament (Cleveland, Ohio) Cleveland State, Princeton, Wright State 7:00 and 9:00 (TV)

Intramural Update

This semester's intramural programs are currently in full swing. All students, faculty, and staff are invited and encouraged to participate.

Flag football started October 10 and will continue throughout the month. If you are not on a team, come out and enjoy the games anyway.

Intramural Fun Runs were held October 23. Mark Whitesell won the 3-mile run with a time of 24:17, while Tom Underwood won the 1-mile run with a time of 5:15. Intramural tee shirts were awarded to the winners.

Six-on-six coed volleyball entries opened October 19. Certs and Trident are sponsoring a regional coed four-on-four tournament at Furman University after the six-on-six intramural season. The winning six-person team on campus will represent Coastal at Furman. Tee shirts, beach kits, and gym bags will be awarded.

There is also a three-on-three basketball tournament held at Furman. This tournament is sponsored by Schick and will be held in November.

The triathlon entries open November 2. Legs of the triathlon include: a quarter-mile swim, a five-mile bike, and a two-mile run. The team with the best overall time wins.

Free intramural aerobics continue every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 2:30 p.m. to 3:30 p.m. and every Tuesday and Thursday from 6:00 p.m. to 7:00 p.m. Aerobics classes are held in the dance studio in the P.E. Center.

Intramural bowling final results are in. The highest team average was 532 for Team 1 with Gavin Lowe, Mark Cannavazzi, Sean Ellis, and Al Benedi. The highest male average was 160 for John Mann. The highest female score was 116 for Kim Chase. Sign-up for the next five-week bowling tournament are now in progress at the Intramural Office.

For more information, contact the Intramural Office in Williams-Brice Building, Room 105, or call 349-2830.

Help Your Heart

Why Exercise?

As summer fades into fall and winter, healthful habits such as exercising often fade away as well. Shorter and cooler days tend to make you want to stay inside rather than take that run or go to the gym. Anyway, you don't need to think about wearing those shorts or that bathing suit again for months.

So why exercise? Because, according to the American Heart Association, exercise is one of the best personal defenses against heart disease.

Diseases of the heart and blood vessels claim the lives of nearly one million Americans every year. But by reducing blood cholesterol levels, controlling high blood pressure, not smoking, maintaining a proper weight and exercising regularly, the risk of heart disease can be reduced.

But that's just one of the reasons to exercise. People who exercise regularly often find that they feel better, look better and even work better than before they started an exercise program.

If you feel too tired to exercise... do it anyway! You'll gain more energy and find that you have an increased resistance to fatigue. Exercise can also improve your ability to fall asleep quickly and sleep well.

Even if you don't want to lose weight—exercise! Exercise burns off calories to help lose extra pounds and helps you maintain your ideal weight. In addition, you'll tone up your muscles and look even better.

Have you ever convinced yourself that you "have too much work to do to worry about exercising?" Take heart. Exercise often contributes to increased productivity at work and helps increase your capacity for physical work.

Before you start an exercise program, see your doctor. Then choose an activity you like such as walking, jogging, bicycling, swimming, tennis or aerobics. Then just set up a schedule to get started.

According to the AHA, exercising regularly for 30-60 minutes at least 3-4 times a week will improve and maintain cardiovascular fitness.

For more information, contact your nearest American Heart Association.

Let's Do Lunch

Tricia Grant
Debbie Rahn

"This week we ate lunch at The Golden Gate Restaurant, which serves Chinese and American food. The restaurant is located at 1201 N. Kings Highway. Take 501 toward Myrtle Beach, which turns into 17 business. Just past the Pavilion on the left you will find the Golden Gate Restaurant. Golden Gate serves a buffet lunch from 11:30 until 2:30. The buffet consists of: Fried Chicken wings, Egg Rolls, Roast Pork, Fried Rice, Pepper Steak, Sweet and Sour Pork, Moo Goo Gai Pan, Shrimp Chow Mein, Roast Pork with Almonds, Roast Pork Lo Mein, Hot Chinese Tea, Salad Bar, and Dessert Bar.

Rahn:
Price: xxx A little over $5 when you get a drink.
Service: xxxx Very attentive waiters.
Location xxx If you go by here on the way home, it's great, but if you go in-between classes you need at least an hour and a half.
Food Quality xxxx 1/2 Great food & lots of it. For those with a hearty appetite, it's all you can eat.
Atmosphere xxxx Nicely decorated, the place feels like real chinese restaurants, unlike some of these so-called chinese restaurants on the beach.

Grant:
Price xxxx Five dollars for all you can eat is pretty generous.
Service xxxx Every time I have been to the Golden Gate, the service has been very good.
Location xxx If you are familiar with the area, it is not hard to find, but it is out of the way for non-locals.
Food Quality xxxx I cannot think of anything I have eaten here that I did not enjoy.
Atmosphere xxx Tables, booths, fairly nice oriental atmosphere.

Bar Hopping

With Kearnan Weaver

Autumn! Orange and yellow leaves, Halloween, cool nights, my birthday, and football. Not just football — college ball, pro ball and even after-school two hand touch football. What do all three have in common? Friends and a good time (unless, of course, your team is getting slaughtered). No matter where you are or who you're with, you cheer, laugh and raise your glass to a good tackle, a bad fumble, and even an injured player. If you have any compassion at all you'll usually wait until he is on his feet. Where else better to salute your favorite team or player than in front of a big screen TV and a waitress more than willing to get your beer, enabling you to see every single play. Whether it is Saturday's college games or Sunday and Monday's pro games, there's always a bar open somewhere that is more than happy to cater to your football watching needs.

COLLEGE SATURDAYS — As the last few weeks of college ball dwindle away there is still enough time to catch a couple heated rivalries. Try T.E. McGee's, every week there is a choice game that is watched in it's entirety and random games are played throughout the day. In between games, during half times, and after games there is music and sports highlights until 12:00 a.m. T.E. McGee's is not one of the lucky bars open until 2:00 found just a mile up the street. But, if you do as I did and bring along a few good friends you can pile in the car with the designated driver (of course) and cruise up to Martini's and continue the party. They earned a 3.5.

SUNDAY GAMEDAY — If you're one of the many that are romantically involved with Bryant Gumble and can't seem to rip yourself away from the couch during CBS Gameday, smile because things are coming up roses for you. The Spanish Galleon solves all of your problems. Stay at home all day. Eat chips, pizza, more chips, and pizza they don't care. Because when Gumble signs off to make room for prime time programming — the Spanish Galleon is still there. They show the 7:00 game on a wide screen TV with a variety of drink specials. If half time comes around and you're bored, go dancing. That's right — you can dance in between plays if you like. The only bad thing is that you can't hear the game, but the Galleon is one of the lucky bars that can stay open to 2:00 a.m. So unless you're really concerned with those 7:30 and 8:30 classes Monday morning, you can go into overtime. 3.0.

What's football weekend if you don't do MONDAY NIGHT? I know, if you've had a rough weekend or you have a full Tuesday schedule, you've got to kind of take it easy on Monday night. Fine, go to the Dutch Deli. Monday nights are simple: $3 pitchers of beer and a big screen TV. What else do you need? Just sit back, relax, place a few friendly bets between buddies, maybe even play a game of drink football — almost a night you could spend with the folks. The Dutch Deli is the time out of football bar attending, 3.5.

Archarios

I would like to thank everyone who submitted writings and artwork for the fall issue. We received approximately 150 submissions from students, faculty, and staff and we feel that we have composed a magazine of quality literature and artwork from our campus community. Our first issue will be here on November 30. We are currently planning a public reception to be held within the first week of December. Thanks also to my staff and editorial board members: Stephanie Biegner, Brendan Frost, Dargan Baldwin, Paul Olsen, Paul Rice, and Ed Hood; and to Pat Singleton-Young, Jean Slabaugh, The Chanticleer, The Athenium, and the Student Media Committee for aiding in our revival of Archarios.

satirical lyrics which lampoon "Amerikkkan" society. Seeing that they could never legally censor such music, the Washington housewives proposed, in a Senate hearing, a rating system in which every "obscene" album would have to have a letter rating, such as V for violent material, O for the occult or X for profanity, suicide, and sexually explicit themes, "including fornication, sado-masochism, incest, bestiality[sic], and necrophilia." (It is ironic that every opera ever written would need a rating as well.) The problem with this rating system is who would do the rating? The PMRC? Jerry Falwell? Pat Robertson? Ed Meese? What about Ron Reagan? Naw; he'd probably "forget" what each rating stood for...

In any event, the record industry didn't stand for the proposed rating system, but instead settled on an "Explicit Lyrics, Parental Advisory" label for every record "guilty" of such rating. So what has happened is that the chain record stores, fearing pressure from the religious right and the Coors-backed PMRC, have pulled from their shelves almost every album with said warning stickers. The result is a subtle form of blackballing. Independent releases are now virtually impossible to find in any record store because many of the "indies" do not comply with industry standards of putting warning labels on the records they release. Thus, the stores feel they can't take a chance by carrying them, not knowing for sure which ones are obscene. And if perchance your band has a major label contract, you can bet the executives will either make you "softer up" those nasty lyrics or drop you from their payroll, by gosh. Here we are living in a neo-McCarthy-era society, and are none the wiser—the '50s never happened!

A year and a half after the police raided Biafra's home, the case was finally brought to trial. In the interim months, Greenworld, one of the distributors that was also charged, went bankrupt, and Dead Kennedys disbanded. After an unusually long jury selection process, the hearings began. Biafra's lawyers were not allowed to present information explaining that the case was politically motivated and that outside forces, such as the PMRC, were at work. Neither were they allowed to present evidence that Dead Kennedys had been previously harassed by the LA police force, when at one of their concerts, the LA riot squad showed up with helicopters and tear gas, attacking those in attendance, beating them with their clubs.

At the end of it all, the jury was deadlocked 7-5 in favor of acquittal. When the prosecutor made a motion for a mistrial, wherein the entire case would have to be heard again, the judge dropped the charges and the case was dismissed. Hurrah for Jello Biafra! -But did he win? Sure, he didn't have to go to jail or pay the $2,000 fine, but his court costs totalled over $80,000 and no favorable precedence was made for similar cases in the future.

Before the hearing, and in front of news cameras, the prosecutor, LA Deputy City Attorney Michael Guarino, said, "I think this is a cost-effective way of sending out the message . . . that we're going to prosecute," in reference to those distributing such harmful matter. -What did he really mean? Could it be he meant that the easiest way to deal with bands who have "explicit" lyrics is to target the guys who aren't financially capable of defending themselves, let them go bankrupt, and thereby make them the example for the rest of the industry, lest they meet the same fate? Cost-effective. . . call it blackballing.

If you'd like to see for yourself how "obscene" the Giger poster is, you can come to the Chanticleer office or for your own copy of the poster, you can write to: Alternative Tentacles Records, PO Box 11458, San Francisco, CA 94101. If you'd like one of their order forms, you might get one quicker if you sent them a 25 cent stamp or an SASE.

If nothing else, remember this: Frank Zappa once said something to the effect: Don't let the government tell you what you don't like; tell them what you do like. With that, sweet dreams kiddies. . .

A lot of campus rapes start here.

Whenever there's drinking or drugs, things can get out of hand. So it's no surprise that many campus rapes involve alcohol. But you should know that under any circumstances, sex without the other person's consent is considered rape. A felony, punishable by prison. And drinking is no excuse. That's why, when you party, it's good to know what your limits are. You see, a little sobering thought now can save you from a big problem later.

I thought I was adept at hitchhiking, but I was outdone one spring break by two college students on the side of a New York interstate. There they sat in lawn chairs, a cooler at their feet and a sign that read: "Fort Lauderdale. Rides now being accepted."

My friend Donna, who normally gets good grades, had done poorly in one of her courses. In an attempt to prepare her parents, she jokingly told her mother, "If you see an unfamiliar letter on my report card, remember it's my first initial."

As the time neared for grades to be sent home, Donna began to worry. Her worst fears were confirmed one evening when she called home and her cheery "Hi, Mom!" was met by a stony, "Hello, Frank."

Offended by today's lack of courtesy, a freshman decided to address the issue in her weekly English essay. The composition, titled "Chivalry Is Dead," was returned with the instructor's notation: "Chivalry is not only dead, it is also misspelled."

In an opera course I was taking, one of the college's star athletes would doze off every day just at the lecture's start and snooze until the final bell. One day he walked in late. Stopping

After handing back a test on which my accounting students had done poorly, I started to lecture them: "A word to the wise . . ." Before I could continue, a student who had made less than an outstanding grade asked, "Is it all right for the rest of us to listen too?"

At college I fell into a cycle of classes, studying, working and sleeping. I didn't realize how long I had neglected writing my family until I received the following note: "Dear son—your mother and I enjoyed your last letter; of course, we were much younger then and more impressionable. Love, Dad."

My professor at Central Michigan University was lecturing enthusiastically when she noticed that the class was writing feverishly, trying to keep up with her. "Everyone stop writing," she said. "I want you to listen and understand what I say. You don't have to copy everything verbatim. Any questions?"

"Yes," piped up one student. "How do you spell verbatim?"

When Class is Called

Submitted By the Office of Public Relations

Occasionally, bad weather or other emergency situations make it necessary to cancel classes. When this occurs, local radio and television stations are notified immediately. Students are advised to tune to one of the stations listed at the left for information.

College officials ask that you not call the switchboard for information. This large volume of incoming calls only hampers efforts to get accurate information to the news media in a timely manner.

Administrators also note that the decision to cancel classes or special events is made independently of those made by public schools. Unless an announcement says that Coastal Carolina College has canceled classes, students should assume that classes will be held as scheduled.

To the left are radio and television stations that are notified in case of emergency school closings.

Passport Series will present the Czechoslovakian film pub Save pubPla"Loves of a Blonde" Sunday, November 4 at 3:00 p.m. in Wheelwright Auditorium.

"Loves of a Blonde" is one of many great films director Milos Forman made before leaving his native Czechoslovakia.

This touching comedy centers around a young woman named Andula. She works in the local shoe factory and dreams of meeting the ideal man.

She pins her hopes on a dance for soldiers being held in her town. The soldiers turn out to be no more interesting than the local boys, so she ends up with the piano player. After one night, she decides she is in love with him and follows him to Prague.

Unfortunately, he is even more of a loser than the boys she spurned at home. Nevertheless she tries to put on a cheerful face when she returns to her village after a "glorious weekend" in Prague.

Forman presents the universality of small town life in an appealing film.

Tickets for "Loves of a Blonde" are $2.00 for the public and $1.00 for students.

For more information about "Loves of a Blonde" or any Coastal production, contact the Wheelwright Box Office at 349-2502, between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m., Monday through Friday.

The USC Coastal Carolina College Art Department is hosting an exhibit by Myrtle Beach artist Dot Lesnik from November 1 through November 28 in the Gallery of the Graduate and Continuing Education Building, located in the horseshoe.

The show, titled "Landscapes," features Lesnik's acrylic and pastel paintings.

Lesnik studied art in Maryland and California before moving to Myrtle Beach in 1970. Her landscapes are part of an extensive series of works inspired by numerous trips she has made to France and India during the past seven years.

An opening reception will be held for Lesnik's exhibit on Thursday, November 1, from 1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. in the Gallery. The reception is open to the public at no charge.

For more information, call Charles Wright in Coastal's Art Center at 448-1481, 347-3161 or 546-0234, extension 2701.

The workshops will assist undeclared students in selecting a major. Participants will include professionals from offices of Academic Affairs, Student Affairs and the assistant deans of Business, Education, Fine Arts and Humanities, and Natural and Applied Sciences.

Coastal and USC Form Partnership

Submitted by the Office of Public Relations

A research partnership has been formed between USC Coastal Carolina College and the South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology, USC Columbia.

The arrangement between Coastal and the institute means that projects jointly pursued by both groups will list Coastal as a senior researcher and principal investigator. Also available to Coastal are research funds, access to the institute office and research library in Columbia, and field equipment and a vehicle for field study.

"Aside from the tangible benefits of the agreement, we're associated with a nationally recognized organization," said James Michie, Coastal professor and associate director of the Waccamaw Center for Historical and Cultural Studies. The partnership is reflected in correspondences from Michie's office on the Coastal campus.

"Being allowed to use the South Carolina Institute of Archaeology and Anthropology name with our letterheads, as well as for our excavations and laboratory work, lends credibility to our work here at Coastal," Michie said.

The agreement was formally approved in June and has been implemented this fall at Coastal.

Snakes on Campus

By Patti Loebs, R.N.

According to the campus police, a number of snakes, including the venomous copperhead, have been sighted on campus. The main areas of the sightings have been near the building site of the new E. Craig Wall building and the wooded area between the residence halls and the Science Building. Students are urged to avoid walking in wooded areas, especially in the evenings. The police also advise wearing shoes at all times. Caution is needed while walking anywhere on campus, particularly while construction is going on, as these snakes have had their habitats disrupted and are looking for new homes.

Another word of caution: If you do see a snake, leave it alone, stay out of its way, and notify the campus police or Office of Residence Life. If by some slim chance someone is bitten by a poisonous snake, call 911 for the EMS immediately. For more information contact the campus police at extension 2177.
